Unique Castle on the Costa da Morte. La Coruña
Ref. S76

Fortified peninsula dating back to the 18th century, a vision in stone in the shape of a star.

2 habitaciones
2 baños
2.700 m² de superficie
5 Ha de terreno

Its built area measures approximately 2,700 m², of which around 700 m² is living space. The accommodation is conveniently laid out over a single floor, distributed between nine rooms (multiple reception rooms with fireplaces, two bedrooms with en-suite bathroom, kitchen, wine cellar, gym and utility room) with no architectural barriers. Throughout, it features striking domed ceilings, various entrances and panoramic views from every aspect, taking in Mount Pindo (known as the Celtic Olympus) and picturesque coastal villages.

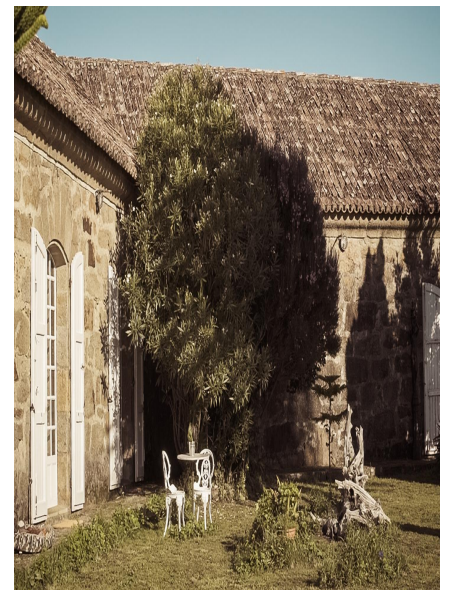

This extraordinary fortress rises imposingly from the Ría de Corcubión, the most elevated of the Rías Baixas and the only access route to Finisterre. With a total area of approximately five hectares, it's surrounded by nature, suspended between the sea and native Galician woodland.

Outside, there are four internal gardens, a well and several abundant natural springs. The property is connected to the village water mains and is equipped with central heating and a private three-phase power connection. A staircase provides access to the shore, where there are two fine-sand beaches and a cave, all part of the property.

All utilities are up to date and ready to use, comprising a telephone line, 5G coverage, a satellite dish and aerial and a wireless security system.

Due to the surrounding topography, there is scope for installing a helipad and some form of mooring at the shore (subject to the relevant permissions), making this remarkable property accessible by land, sea and air.

Set in a natural beauty spot just 90 km from Galicia's two main cities (Santiago de Compostela and La Coruña), each offering an airport and railway station, this is an unmissable opportunity to own an extraordinary historical treasure - and a sensational home.
